

As a resident of Eugene and as a Christian I am pleased to be able to listen to air1. They provide a positive message in a time when negative, anti-social and otherwise corruptive influences seem to prevail in the media. Listening to air1 is music and inspiration worth listening to and helps to shape a positive reference whereby I am inspired to be a more positive influence at work, home and in my society.

I am certain that there is at least 5% of the Eugene/Springfield metro area that would be saddened and even disheartened if air1 were to be displaced by another LPFM station. I am aware of three people at work whom would be mentally affected by not hearing air1 every morning. Where would they draw their inspiration to get past the divorce that one is in? Whom could the recovering drug addict listen to? Top 40? Where is there a positive message that gives them a hope to get through it in Top 40? The loss of air1 would be felt and we are left with little if any choice of what to listen to on the air.

Please consider that if even one woman getting hope to get through just one more day is because of air1 then do you not think they are providing a public service? They are.

Or how about the that person coming clean from drugs and the only way to give that person some positive hope is listening to what is the most encouraging radio around, Air1.

Please do not allow LPFM to have such a say as to displace the only radio that I think is fit to listen to for my family and myself.
